FIGHTING IN JERUSALEM

Rifle and Machine Gun Fire Echo Throughout the Area

By International News Service
LONDON, Oct. 18.—British military authorities have decided to declare martial law in Palestine tomorrow, the diplomatic correspondence of the London Evening Standard said today.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 18.—Rifle and machine gun fire, echoing through Jerusalem, brought increasing nervousness to the town today, with reports that fighting in the ancient section was virtually at a standstill.

Large areas adjoining the walls of Jerusalem were cordoned off by troops, as Arab terrorists pressed forward with their anti-Jewish campaign against both Jews and British troops seeking to put down the Arab revolt.

Intermittent sniping and machine gun fighting began at dawn and continued throughout the day.

MORRISVILLE QUILTS FALLS FIRE PROTECTION

Fifteen Days' Grace Ended At Midnight, Saturday, It Is Announced

YEARLY CONTROVERSY

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 18.—Local firemen will no longer give fire protection to Falls Township. The service previously given was discontinued at midnight Saturday, as voted by Borough Council at a recent meeting.

It was first decided to discontinue the service on October 1 but 15 days grace was allowed in order to give the township authorities time to reconsider the decision in the matter of paying $500 per year for this service.

Nearly every year there is a controversy over the payment of the amount Morrisville Council requests for this service and there have been times before when the service was discontinued because of the non-payment, but finally the payment was made and service was restored.

Several years ago $500 was verbally agreed upon as the yearly sum but township authorities say that since the Falls Township Fire Company has a new modern apparatus, Morrisville is not called nearly as often and thereby the charge should be reduced. The supervisors say $1,000 was set aside for fire protection in the township and of this sum $700 was given their own fire company toward the payment on the new apparatus and the balance of $300 they were willing to give to Morrisville.

Morrisville councilmen hold that because every resident of Morrisville, over 21 years of age, must pay a fire tax for the support of the Morrisville department, it is not right to send their apparatus out into the township unless a suitable sum of money is received.

Twenty-Nine Tables Are Required For Card Games

A card party, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, was held in the Bracken Post home, last evening, with Mrs. Marvel Durham in charge.

A platform will be constructed in front of the bleachers, where prize winners will be required to assemble to permit a good view by the spectators.

The annual Fall meeting of the directors of the Needlework Guild was held at the Friends Home, Newtown.

The shoe fund, in charge of Mrs. LeRoy Suber, was reported depleted. Children are taken to stores and fitted with shoes which are paid from this fund. Several members sewed during the Summer and a new guild chapter was organized in Southampton by Mrs. Elizabeth Case and Miss Sara Packer.

The annual ingathering of garments will be held on November 10, in the New Century Club rooms.

Committees in charge of the arrangements for this display of garments are: Receiving, Mrs. Sara Packer, Mrs. Mary Horace Effrig, Mrs. Franklin J. Linton, Mrs. Wallace Murfit, Sorting, Mrs. Walker Jackson, Mrs. Alfred Errico, Mrs. Lewis Sasse, Mrs. Amos Bond, Miss Louise Hartman, Mrs. Raymond Taylor; Arranging, Miss Rose Keeler, Mrs. James Hibbs, Mrs. Herman Barnsley, Mrs. M. RODEO TO BE FEATURE AT HORSE SHOW HERE

Al Hernig and His Daredevil Cowboys to Perform at Laing Estate Sunday Afternoon

MANY OTHER FEATURES

Sunday afternoon, Al Hernig and his daredevil cowboys will give a thrilling exhibition at the horse show on the Laing Estate, Newportville Road. Mr. Hernig rides at the head of his famous troupe on a cream-colored stallion that has never been matched for beauty. His saddle and bit are made of sterling silver and studded with precious jewels. The performance is accompanied by his "hill-billy band" atop an old stage coach drawn by four horses.

Thomas Doran, president of the Bristol Riding Club, says he expects this to be one of the best shows ever held here. It will start promptly at 12 o'clock noon on both Saturday and Sunday. There will be 25 classes for all types of horses and ponies, and a steeplechase will add to the thrills on Sunday.

Dr. Laing has made many improvements on the grounds to provide for the comfort of horses, exhibitors and spectators. Hunters and jumpers will be judged by Mrs. Frederick VanLemep and Joseph Baldwin, of West Chester; saddle horse and pony classes by Dr. E. C. Powell, Bryn Mawr. The race will be under the direction of David D. O'Dell, of Penns Park.

Children's classes this year have been expanded and every effort is being made to have them enjoy the show. Mrs. Suzanne Ford, of Long Island, who is a guest of Mrs. Laing, has been grooming several children and ponies for the show, among them the girls from St. Mary's Hall in Burlington.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Special-Tax Baruch

Washington, Oct. 17.

THE conversation which Mr. B. M. Baruch had with the President last week, and his subsequent public statements pointing out the inadequacy of the American war machine for national defense and the possibility of a menace to us from the economic infiltration and propaganda in South America of the Fascist nations, seems certain to have far-reaching consequences.

FOR one thing, the force of the Baruch arguments is attested by the virulence of the attack upon him by the Hitler-controlled German press. For another, Mr. Roosevelt appears to have determined upon action along the lines suggested by Mr. Baruch. Announcing that his budget calculations must await a survey of defense needs, apparently he will ask of Congress a great appropriation for the increase of our military strength. At the same time, through the State Department, steps are to be taken to guard our trade in South America from Germans and Japanese, who are aggressively going after it—a fact which Mr. Baruch stressed a good many weeks ago.

NONE of this, of course, means that a crisis has arisen in this country or that there need be alarm about foreign invasion. It does mean that a realistic view of our situation is being taken, and that in a world where Force so obviously counts, an effort is going to be made to put us in position to protect our interests and back up our words. As no one can tell when the need to do that will come, it seems merely sensible to get ready. In addition to those facts, there are several domestic

HAS COLLECTION OF 175 JUGS IN HIS BASEMENT

Dan'l J. McLees, Wilson Ave., Has Secured Many Various Sizes and Shapes

AN ADMIRER DISPLAY

A cellar full of jugs! Such is the case at the home of Daniel J. McLees, 1627 Wilson avenue.

But in this instance the jugs are not dusty nor dusty—and in addition Mr. McLees gives the assurance that they are all empty.

For decorative purposes, and for the pleasure of viewing them in their well-ordered display, is the reason this collection is arranged on sturdy sectional shelves at the McLees residence.

Little brown jugs; medium sized blue jugs; and big gray jugs are to be seen in this collection which Mr. McLees has gathered in the short space of a few months this Summer with the exception of a few garnered about four years ago. One hundred and seventy-five are on display, the oldest being about 200 years old.

Formerly serving in the roles of butter and cheese pots, bean jars, buckwheat batter pitchers, old-time bird baths and poultry drinking fountains, hip-flasks, mugs, etc., the 175 jars are now, after lives of great usefulness, resting on the shelves in decorative surroundings.

Some of the wide-mouthed crocks formerly held stuffed, pickled peppers, spiced watermelon rind, cucumber rings, sour krout, and the like; narrower ones with thin, elongated bodies.

"White Boots" Jumps Out of Trailer At Sound of "Gun"

Staging a jumping event of its own, "White Boots" a horse owned by Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing, Newport Road, jumped 6' 6" over the top of the trailer in which it was being hauled yesterday, the jump being necessarily from a stand-still.

The "shot" which signalled the start of this unheralded event, was the back-firing of an automobile at Eddington, as the horse was being brought back from a show in Philadelphia by Mrs. Laing and her guest, Mrs. Suzanne Ford, of Long Island.

Landing on the guard of the bumper of the car in which Mrs. Laing and Mrs. Ford were riding the horse sustained a punctured wound of the neck.

Then starting off at breakneck speed it made for the railroad tracks. Hurdled leaving the car, Mrs. Ford followed, and trailed the horse at her top speed to a point near Croydon, where Mrs. Ford was finally successful in corralling the animal just before four trains passed.

MRS. RALPH STAHLNECKER ADDRESSES JUNIOR CLUBS

Her Address Deals Mainly With "Our Federation" And Its Activities

HAS 3-FOLD PURPOSE

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 18.—The Fall Get-Together of Junior Women's Clubs of Bucks County occurred in Salem Reformed Church, here last evening, with Mrs. Ralph E. Stahlnecker, second vice-president-at-large of Pennsylvania State Women's Federation, as the speaker.

Dealing with "Our Federation" Mrs. Stahlnecker told of the work of the junior organization. She dwelt at length on the three-fold purpose of the association, which embraces extinction of the marihuana weed, combatting of syphilis, and highway beautification.

At the conclusion of her address she conducted an open forum during which time many questions were asked and answered.

The Rev. Charles F. Freeman, pastor of the church, offered prayer at the beginning of the session, and led in the flag salute. Singing was led by Mrs. Claude Lodge, junior county chairman of music.

The welcome was extended by Mrs. Horace Watson, Newtown, junior co-chairman of organization.

The head of the scholarship committee, Mrs. Ruth Fairbanks, Doylestown, presided during the business session.

The president or another representative of each club represented made a report. The nine clubs sending members were: Bristol, Chalfont, Doylestown, Langhorne, Newtown, Perkasee, New Hope, Warrington, Southampton. Each president reported on projects of her club.

Refreshments were served to the group.

Dr. Stuart Discusses Problems of The School

The joint meeting of the head teachers and elementary teachers of Lower Bucks County was held on Wednesday night, October 12th, in the Newtown high school building. The meeting was opened by Mr. Miller, of Edgely, president of the Head Teachers' Association.

Mr. Boehm first made a few remarks concerning the necessity of stress in all schools on the subject of reading. In direct connection with the emphasis to be put on reading in the immediate future in all grades up to and including the ninth, Mr. Boehm urged all reading and English teachers to take courses in remedial reading.

Dr. Cecelia Stuart then took over the discussion group. The topic for the evening was "Remedial Reading." "A handicap in reading is a handicap in life," says Dr. Stuart.

The first thing to do, Dr. Stuart, in charge of Child Education in Harrisburg, explained, is to give the children experiences about which they can talk and write. Later they can read and illustrate their writings. Habits that a child forms in speaking incorrectly out of school, sometimes need a great deal of correcting in the schoolroom.

Failures in arithmetic, geography, history, and science, may all be due to a limited reading ability. Inasmuch as 60 to 80% of reading failures have normal to superior intelligence, it is necessary to find a way to teach each individual to read to his capacity.

Specific instances were cited by many of the teachers of individualized work, work adapted to the level of the child and not to the level of the grade he is in. This type of work is of great importance to the child who is not as advanced as the rest of his group.

The meeting was largely attended, and all who heard Dr. Stuart, head of Child Education in Harrisburg, appreciated her remarks, as her experience in the teaching field has been varied and her work in the State Department of Education at the present time will benefit the schools of Pennsylvania for years to come.

INDIAN SUMMER? YES AND NO

There are some persons who pretend to speak with authority on the subject of Indian Summer. They say, as if they were possessed of all wisdom, that Indian Summer has come and gone, that it is now here or that it is on its way. But they are merely vain pretenders who speak without knowledge.

Even the meteorologists do not claim to be informed about Indian Summer, an elusive, fleeting season, which appears swiftly and without warning, bringing with it a brief spell of warmth and haze, and then departs, leaving nothing more tangible than a spell of enchantment.

The Indians in New England believed that this "Summer," which is a free agent among the seasons, recognizing none of the customary controls and restraints, was carried on the wind from their great god of the Southwest, who sent them their maize, beans and other blessings and cared for the souls of their dead.

It is impossible to say, under the circumstances, whether Indian Summer is a thing of the past or is one of the delights that the future holds. All that is certain is that it constitutes a spell of beautiful days and compensates somewhat for the proximity of Winter.

COLD WEATHER DON'TS

A pundit remarks that it is strange no one ever formulates a list of cold weather "don'ts." Everyone is familiar with hot weather "don'ts" which annually make their appearance in May, usually coming from some doctor or other who is feeding at the public trough and suffers from the obsession that he should do something in return for the salary he collects from the taxpayers.

Why these noschangers have never thought it necessary to make a stab at earning their keep in the winter time has been something of a mystery at that. But if anyone has ever seen a list of cold weather "don'ts" he has succeeded in keeping it secret.

To remedy this lack of enterprise on the part of the payrollers, such a list is hereby compiled:

Don't expectorate on the sidewalk in cold weather. You may return that way again and skid on the ice.

Don't drink boiling hot water in an effort to keep warm. You may burn your tongue.

Avoid all over-exertion as this may result in an unseasonable sweat.

Wear plenty of clothing, such as pants, shirts, overcoats, dresses, shoes, etc., as this will help to keep you warm.

Don't watch the thermometer when the temperature is plummeting, as it may burst and tiny segments of glass may lodge in your proboscis.

APPRECIATION

By Mary Douglass DuHamel

Master, today, the golden trees
Against the azure of the sky,
Made me think of Thee,
And I said, "How wonderful
The Mind, that planned this beauty!"

I held within my hand a rose
So exquisite in color, so fragrant
In perfume, so perfect were its petals.
That again I said, "What a mind
To think of such a beautiful thing!"

And then I heard a bird's song
Lilting! Such happy carefree notes!
They filled my heart with joy,
For I was sad. So I said, "What a mind
To think of giving music, to such as I!"

And the river sparkling in the moonlight,
Upon the shore, the lovers hand in hand,
Her sweet, sweet smile, his eyes so gently tender,
Around them both a great and wondrous awe

When I said, "O, Mind Supreme, that fashioned Love!"

Out in the street, I saw a baby lay Asleep within a coach—suddenly,
Its eyes were opened, and it smiled
at me.

And about my fingers clasped its dimpled hand,
I said, "All glorious is Thy understanding Heart!"

politics in extending the State's helping hand. Our purpose is to show the way to real jobs, with real futures in them. As far as the men and women on W. P. A. and relief rolls are concerned, I want to say that I am not going to let them wants a special tax, Mr. Baruch always wants a special tax for any Government project that costs big money. He is a pay-as-you-go fellow. He does not believe, any more than the President once did, in borrowing to finance deficits. He does not believe in burdening future generations with a mountainous debt. Nor does he believe in risking national bankruptcy. As a matter of fact, he never has believed in the spending-your-way-back-to-prosperity theory and has not hesitated to say so.

IN 1933, before Mr. Roosevelt took office or became a convert to that theory, he and Mr. Baruch felt exactly the same way on the subject of national finance. At that time Mr. Baruch sold to the President the extremely sound theory that it did not make any difference how large an appropriation was,

provided always it was accompanied by its tax. Every appropriation out of the ordinary for relief, for agriculture, for rehabilitation, for anything, must be accompanied by its special tax. That was the only way in which deficits could be avoided, the debt kept under control and national solvency preserved.

THAT was the Baruch creed, and in 1933 no one subscribed to it more heartily than Mr. Roosevelt.
It was on that basis he started out; but he didn't last long. Inside of six months the borrowing-to-spend theory gripped him and away he went, with the result that twenty-one billions have been added to the debt and the Federal finances are in pretty appalling shape. Now, with a deficit running close to four billions a year for relief, he is about to ask Congress for other billions for defense. Old Special-Tax Baruch, who has not changed his creed, again points out the way in which these can be had without further danger to an already badly strained financial fa-brie. But special taxes are not popular with the President, or with Congress, and it is easier to talk about them than impose. None the less, it is clear that, unless this time the special tax is attached, the defense billions, however they may increase our military strength, will accelerate our progress toward repudiation or inflation. That is a certainty.

BEGINNING OF METHODISM IN AMERICA

THE movement that resulted in Methodism began at Christ Church College, Oxford, England, some time in 1729. The chief leaders were John Wesley, Charles Wesley and George Whitefield. The foundations of American Methodism were begun at Philadelphia by Whitefield on his second visit to America in 1739. On his way from Philadelphia, via Abington, Neshaminy, etc., Whitefield, in all probability, stopped at Bristol.

On May 7, 1745, Whitefield crossed the river from Burlington to Bristol, where he preached to about four hundred people and then returned to Philadelphia. On his last visit to America in 1770, he left Philadelphia late in June for Boston, stopping at Bristol and Burlington.

When it is remembered that the three giants of the "Holy Club" at Oxford University were the Wesley Brothers and George Whitefield, the fact is easily established that Bristol, Pennsylvania, and Burlington, New Jersey, were among the first towns in America where Methodism was planted.

In the latter part of the year 1767, Captain Webb made his first visit to Philadelphia where he found Methodism well established and a class meeting functioning in a sail loft on Dock Street under the leadership of James Emerson. This class consisting of seven members he organized into a Society that became known as St.
George's.

Joseph Pilmoor, one of Wesley's first two Missionaries who arrived in Philadelphia, October 24, 1769, shortly began preaching in the neighborhood of Bristol. March 3, 1770, he says, he preached at a place twenty miles from the city although he does not identify the place. July 27, 1770, he preached in the Town Hall at Burlington, New Jersey. On November 5, 1770, he left Pennypack for Burlington by way of Bristol. December 23, 1771, he arrived at Bristol from Philadelphia in the dusk of the evening and immediately went over the river to Burlington. It is known that Pilmoor preached in the Court House at Bristol on several occasions.

Francis Ashbury, who was ordained the first American Bishop, visited Bristol frequently. November 7, less than two weeks after landing in Philadelphia from England, Ashbury went to New York by way of Bristol and Burlington. June 11, 1772, he set off by stage for Bristol. October 24, 1772, he left his horse at Bristol and took the ferry for Burlington.

It was in the year 1760 when Philip Embury, a young Irishman who had been appointed a local preacher two years before at the Limerick Conference, emigrated to New York. Embury was a carpenter and for the first six years followed his trade in America and we do not learn that he made any serious attempt to rally his fellow Christians.
In the spring of 1766, however, he came in contact with his cousin, Barbara Heck. Like Embury, Barbara Heck had come from Ireland and was a Methodist, but unlike him was neither diffident or constrained by those about her. She induced Embury to start services in his own home. At his first service he preached to a congregation of five—his wife, Paul and Barbara Heck, and Betty, a colored servant belonging to the Hecks.

It was not long before this little company had added to its numbers and a rigging loft was rented in which to hold religious services. One day while this little company was assembled for worship, a stranger in full military costume appeared. All eyes were upon him and anxious questions arose in every heart. The Methodists had been relentlessly persecuted and prevented from holding public worship in many parts of the old country and they feared lest a similar fate was to overtake the infant church in America. The stranger stayed, however, and by the earnestness with which he joined in the worship quieted the fears of the congregation. After the services he introduced himself as Captain Webb, of Albany, a soldier of the cross and spiritual son of John Wesley.

The coming of such a man into their midst at that critical time was a source of great joy to the members of the church. In addition to the moral support which Capt.
Webb was able to give during that time, when Methodism was denounced nearly everywhere and was made the subject of ribald songs in the streets and public houses, he was personally a man of great popularity, hearty, earnest and of proven courage. He had served at the siege of Louisburg and with General Wolf had scaled the heights of Quebec in that struggle which ended the French rule in America.

As was the custom of the time, when Captain Webb preached—for he had been appointed a local preacher by John Wesley—he appeared in the pulpit in military full dress and was in the habit of removing his sword and placing it upon the pulpit across the Bible. Even in those days this was a little spectacular and sheer curiosity drew many persons to the Methodist services. There were many cases where "Those who came to scoff remained to pray."

Captain Webb soon developed into an aggressive Missionary and began preaching in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania. Methodism was planted in Bristol by him.
Upon one of his journeys to Philadelphia in 1768, he stopped in Bristol and gathering together a crowd on a vacant lot near the outskirts of the town, sat astride his horse in his full regimentals and explained to his hearers the doctrines of the new religion. Some of the people were critical and asked: "How can a man preach a gospel of peace and good-will in the habiliments of war?" A lady in his audience named Mary Conner professed conversion and she became the mother of Bristol Methodism. She organized a class which met in her home on Mill Street.
Henry Tomlinson was the appointed leader. This was the beginning of Methodism in Bristol.

CAPTAIN WEBB

CAPTAIN Thomas Webb was born in 1724. In 1754 he was granted a quartermaster's certificate and was made a Lieutenant in the 48th Northamptonshire Regiment of the British Army. Soon after his commission he was sent to America and saw service at Louisburg where he lost his right eye, over the socket of which he wore a green shade. He was also wounded in the arm at the Battle of Quebec, where General Wolfe lost his life.

As a result of his wounds he was retired on pension and returned to England, where about 1764 he was converted.
Being deeply convicted of sin he was frequently very distressed and was tempted by Satan to put an end to his existence. After being directed by God to certain words in the Bible which were of great comfort to him, he was singularly directed in a dream to a Moravian minister (a Mr. Cary) whom he met with on his way from London to Bristol, and whose person he knew as soon as he saw him, in consequence of his dream. It was also suggested to him that "That man would lead him to Christ." As soon as they arrived in this city (Bristol) he took the opportunity of opening his mind to Mr. Cary, who gave him an invitation to hear him preach the next day.

While the minister was speaking on the sufferings of Christ and his love for mankind, Captain Webb felt that peace and joy through believing which is the evidence of conversion. He became acquainted with the Methodists through the late Rev. Roquet a few days after his conversion, who introduced him to several pious people, among whom he found that spirit which answered to his own and he determined to live and die with these people.

The first time of his bearing testimony of the truth as at Bath, when the preacher not coming as was expected, he was desired to speak to the people, which he did, and gave an account of his experience. Soon afterward he was appointed to go to America in the military capacity of Barrack Master at Albany. This appointment gave him the opportunity to join with those who were then engaged in founding Methodism in America.

He soon became the recognized leader of Methodism in America and the early Church owed much to his aggressiveness and energetic missionary labors. Beside New York and Philadelphia, Webb labored on Long Island, in Delaware, New Jersey and Maryland. He was one of the ten preachers present at the First Conference of American Methodism held in St. George's, July 14-15, 1773.

During the Revolutionary War, an overzealous patriotic hearing that Capt. Webb was a British officer on half-pay, informed against him as a spy. He was arrested in Burlington and taken to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, where he was kept for sometime as a prisoner of war. Later he was paroled and came to Philadelphia, expecting shortly to be exchanged but the matter was delayed for months.
His exchange was finally made and he returned in 1783
to Bristol, England.

He continued preaching for four years and died suddenly at his home in Portland Street, Bristol, on December 10, 1796. On Christmas Eve he was buried in a vault in the crypt of Portland Chapel beneath where the Communion Table stands. Some forty years afterward the sexton of the church, while looking for some old records, inadvertently opened the door of the crypt and to his surprise found the remains of the gallant Captain. Needless to say the masonry was immediately and reverently built up again and an inscription carved on the outer portion to notify of its contents.

Capt. Webb was twice married, the second time to Grace Gilbert at Whitechurch, Salop, on February 12, 1773. He had two sons, Gilbert and Charles, who, after the death of their father, settled in New York. Nothing is known of his first wife, although it is possible she may have died during the French campaign. It was no uncommon thing for wives to accompany their husbands on active service at that time.

"Often a Bridesmaid"

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Of the three pretty Wickham girls, Margaret, the eldest, is the prettiest. It is she who supplies the boy friends for the younger girls, Natalie and Barbara, and for many of her friends. With most of the eligible young men of the community to choose from, Margaret picks Kenneth Raleigh, penniless but popular and handsome young football hero. One night, while at Margaret's home, dressing for the Senior Ball, Sue Decker, her best friend, breaks down and confesses that she also loves Kenneth. The morning after the dance, Babs calls Sue a "body snatcher" for trying to win Ken. Margaret springs to the defense of her friend saying she is spoiled because her wealthy parents indulge her too much.

CHAPTER V

Aunt Bet said in her soft, deliberate voice, "Money doesn't buy happiness."

"It buys nearly everything else," Natalie said dryly. "Margie, you have to admit she was a knockout in that dress, and as for her ermine wrap—"

"Ermine?" Aunt Bet inquired,
"isn't that very old-fashioned, my dear?"

"Oh, Aunt Bet—NO! It's new.
Everybody wears it. Jackets, you know, without the tails. Not like that thing you used to have with the tails on it!"

"Nevertheless I consider it unsuitable for a young girl to wear to a frat dance."

With a gesture of despair, Natalie gave up and attacked her last bit of hotcake savagely. But Babs cried, "Oh, Aunt Bet, I've told you NOBODY says frat! FRATER-NITY. Besides it was the senior ball. And her dress was a marvel.
Listen, it came from Maison Claire,
and it was the original Paris model, not the copy. Say, with a dress like that anybody'd look like a million!"

"You were not satisfied with your gown, Babs, my dear?"

It was Babs' turn to rush and scream her father. "My darling blue? Of course! I LOVE IT!"

Aunt Bet said, "It's a great strain outfitting these young girls.
I don't know how your father does it. I said I don't know how you do it, Alex. Really, I don't."

Alex Wickham acknowledged the compliment with a faint nod of his handsome head. His ego satisfied, he returned to the paper.

Daddy disposed of, Babs came back to the case at hand. "What I can't see is why Sue is so set on Ken. Aside from his belonging to you—"

Aunt Bet leaned forward. This was her chance. "That's just it! A grocery man's son, when both you girls know so many really fine young men!"

It went right over their heads.
"It's BECAUSE he's mine that she wants him," Margaret said without malice. "That's exactly why, I really think that Ken Raleigh is the only thing in life Sue knows she can't have. And that, of course, makes him priceless. The fact that he's mine, and that he positively hates her, doesn't bother her at all!"

"But I still can't understand it," Babs insisted. "Ken is Ken, and all that. But you know what the Deckers are. And for that matter, you could do better, Maggie—"

"Oh—could I?"

"Well, financially, and socially—"

"My dear child if you're happy, I must be glad."

would chase the others away—
"We're engaged!" she cried.

"Ken and I. We—"

"WHEN?" Babs and Natalie shrieked in unison.

"Oh, night before last we talked,
and sort of planned—"

"So THAT'S why you weren't worried about Sue?" cried Babs, to whom an engagement was as final as a wedding vow, which was the safest, surest thing in the world.
"Because you had it all SET-TLED!"

Aunt Bet had her throat, heavily ringed hand at her throat. Her unhappy eyes sought her brother's.
Alex Wickham cleared his throat.
He said, "Are you serious about this, my dear?"

"Serious!" Margaret cried. "Serious! I'm telling you I'm going to be married!"

"To young Raleigh?"

"Well, Daddy—who else... I mean, I thought everybody knew—that it was pretty well understood that some day we—"

Some of the light had gone out of Margaret's eyes. Hurt, puzzled, she looked from her aunt to her father and back again. "Don't you LIKE him?" she asked, her voice breaking.

Aunt Bet continued to clutch at her throat as though her black velvet ribbon were too tight.

All the time, but never heard from
"And at 19 a young girl is inclined to forget." Aunt Bet put in hopefully, "That material advantages do matter. In the old country—"

"If that's all that's worrying you!" Margaret wiped wet eyes with the back of her hand, beamed on her drooping aunt, her anxious father. "You SCARED me. I thought you didn't like him or didn't want me to get married, or something. Goodness

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

At last the miraculous Sonja Henie appears in a picture as American as an ice cream cone! A dazzling modern girl, having a modern good time on a co-ed campus, wearing swank clothes, keeping swell dates—that's Sonja as you'll see her in "My Lucky Star," her new hit for 20th Century-Fox which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre.

A credit to Darryl F. Zanuck and to everyone who had a hand in its making, this is a picture that winks and glitters with fun and romance and the magic of stars hanging low on a still frosty night. It has songs and laughter that seem to sail through the air like ski jumpers and Sonja's magnificent "Alice in Wonderland" ice ballet—climaxing what is by all odds her happiest screen story—is a thing to make you cry out in wonder and delight.

Sharing star honors with Sonja and giving an excellent account of himself is Richard Greene, handsome young British actor last seen in "Four Men and a Prayer," while Joan Davis, Cesar Romero and Buddy Ebsen are featured in widely divergent comedy roles which will delight their fun-loving fans.

BRISTOL

Ted Fio-Rito and his orchestra together with Muzzy Marcellene, Betty

Grable, Lief Erickson and Bill Carey, make their debut in talking pictures in "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," Monogram's college feature, at Bristol Theatre today.

That is to say, that this is the first feature length production wherein the nationally famous composer and conductor has appeared before the mike.

Fio-Rito and his entertainers, during their engagement at the studio, while filming the picture, made their stay one that will long be remembered.

As a rule, on picture production, when a scene has been completed, especially on hot days, everyone walks to an exit or to some cool spot other than the stage upon which they are working. However, the entire company, as well as technical and camera crews, decided that such a treat as Fio-Rito could not be passed up—and

PROCLAMATION

NOTICE TO OWNERS OF DOGS

WHEREAS, there is reason to believe that the disease of rabies or hydrophobia exists or is likely to occur in the Borough of Bristol by reason of the fact that a number of dogs within the Borough of Bristol have recently been bitten by a dog suffering from said disease, and the nature of the disease is such that all dogs within the limits of said Borough must be suspected of being capable of spreading the same, and the welfare and the safety of the citizens require that all dogs within said Borough which have been so bitten shall immediately be killed, and all other dogs for the present be quarantined.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON, Burgess of the Borough of Bristol, by virtue of the authority in me vested as such Burgess under the laws in pursuance of the provisions under an Ordinance of the Borough of Bristol entitled "An Ordinance Granting Authority to the Burgess to Issue His Proclamation Enforcing the Ordinance Controlling the Running at Large of Dogs Within the Borough Limits," enacted the Ninth day of January, A. D. 1882, do hereby proclaim and order that all dogs actually bitten by a dog which has been fighting with a mad dog, or exposed to the said disease of rabies, shall immediately be killed by the owners thereof, and in case the owner of any such dog shall be strictly refused to put such dog to death immediately, legal proceedings against such owner for such neglect or refusal will at once be instituted and such dog ordered to be killed as provided by the Act of Assembly of April 1, 1834, P. L. 141.

That every dog that has been in contact with or close proximity to a mad dog, or exposed to the disease of rabies, although not known to have actually been bitten, shall be strictly quarantined on the premises of the owner and shall be muzzled with a well-fitting muzzle which shall be fastened to prevent biting and shall be tied up, chained and safely secured by a heavy collar around the neck and to a substantial chain, which shall be safely fastened to a secure place, and shall be so tied up, muzzled and secured for a period of one hundred days from the date hereof.

All dogs within the Borough of Bristol are hereby declared to be in the state of quarantine and must be strictly confined or firmly secured on the premises of their owners, and not allowed to run at large or enter upon the streets, lanes or highways of the said Borough; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that dogs which have not been exposed to said disease may be permitted upon the said streets or highways when led by a leash and muzzled with a well-fitting muzzle which will effectually prevent biting.

This quarantine shall remain in force for one hundred days from the date hereof unless sooner removed by me or other competent authority.

The word dog as used in this proclamation shall be taken and construed to include not only dogs but bitches as well.

Owners of dogs are notified and warned that a disregard of this proclamation or the permitting of dogs to run at large within the said Borough without being led by leash and properly muzzled, may lead to the destruction of their dogs, and that they themselves may be proceeded against in accordance with law and the above-cited Ordinance.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the corporate seal of the Borough of Bristol this Fifteenth day of October, A. D. 1938.

CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON, Burgess of the Borough of Bristol.

LANGHORNE XI. ONLY UNBEATEN TEAM IN LOWERBUCKS LEAGUE

Coach Beck's Boys Have Scored A Victory In Every
One of Three Tilts

GOAL LINE NOT CROSSED

Morrisville High Leads In Rolling Up the Six
Pointers

The Langhorne Redskins, after three tilts, have come up with a record of three victories, no defeats, and is the only club in the Lower Bucks County circuit that has yet to taste defeat. More than that the boys of Coach Beck have not as yet had their goal line crossed by their opponents. In fact in none of the three games has the opposition even seriously threatened the Redskins' end zone.

The boys of Coach Charlie Beck have hung up decisions over Pemberton, N. J. S. D., and Fallsington High schools, shutting them out by scores of 6-0, 25-0, and 7-0, respectively. At the same time the Beckmen have chalked up 38 points to their opponents nothing as a look at the figures reveals.

Morrisville High, however, leads in rolling up the six-pointers. They have crossed into alien coveted territory no less than 11 times, scoring 69 points for the season so far, 38 of which came in the tilt with the Mutes last week. The Bulldogs' only setback in four starts was at the hands of the Princeton Tigers.

In three games, Newtown High has scored two triumphs and is second to Morrisville in chalking up touchdowns and points. They have scored seven times, added five extra points, for a total of 47 points. At the same time their opponents have counted 27 points against them.

Bristol High, in winning its first game in four starts last week, has a total of 13 points to 46 for their opponents.

Since Bristol dropped out of the victoryless class last week, Bensalem and Fallsington remain as the only two schools in the circuit who have yet to chalk up a triumph. Each has played three games, dropped two, and tied one. However, Bensalem has the better record on paper than do the Falcons. The Owls have counted 21 points to the opposition's 65 (which is the highest total for opponents of any LBCCL school), while the Falcons have only 7 points to 27 for the opposition. Their offensive record is the lowest of any LBCCL school.

BRINGING MICHIGAN BACK

By Jack Sords

BRISTOL J. V. TOPS OWLS, SCORE, 13 TO 0

"Boake" Carter was the whole show in Bristol High's Junior Varsity 13-0 win over the Bensalem Jayvees on the local high school field yesterday afternoon.

He personally accounted single-handedly for the Junior Cardinals' second touchdown and played a major role in the initial counter. Beside that he not only did most of the ball-toting, but also the punting and passing as well.

In the opening canto, Bristol took the ball and began a march which, from the 50 yard line, was completed in one play, to chalk up their initial touchdown. Carter faded back to leave the ball down the field to left end Steve Florito, who grabbed it on Bensalem's 30 yard line and then flipped a lateral to Tony D'Angelo, who scampered over the goal line from that point. The attempt to add the extra point failed.

Near the close of the third chapter, the Owls, led by Bob Whyte and Hank Stachurski, opened a drive originating from Bristol's 40 yard line that carried them deep into Bristol's territory. When the period ended, Bensalem had the ball on Bristol's 28 yard line. On the first play in the final session, Bob Whyte flipped a little pass over line to his right wing. But Boake Carter came up from the rear fast, grabbed the ball, and raced down the sidelines some 73 yards to score standing up without a hand touching him as he out-spied all rivals who gave chase in his pursuit. Then he dropped back to boot the ball through the uprights and thereby annex the added digit to boost the final score to 13-0.

The victory marked the second in while at the same time it terminated three starts for the local Jayvees, the Bensalem Junior Varsity boys' winning streak of two straight and now gives them the same record as Bristol.

FALLSINGTON GIRLS HOLD BENSALEM TO TIE

FALLSINGTON, Oct. 18 — Coach Helen Smith's Bensalem hockey outfit had a big let-down yesterday afternoon following their surprise win over Newtown last week. And as a result of their over-confidence, the Owl girls could do no better with a weaker Fallsington High eleven than to come off the field with a 1-1 tie in their clash here on the Falcons' field.

Bensalem counted early in the first period on a penalty "bully" shot fired into the nets by Betty Bound, who took the ball up the field, only to have it kicked away by Florence Scheible, Fallsington fullback, just as it was about to go into the nets. Upon receiving the penalty shot as a result of the Falcon fullback kicking the ball in the striking zone, Betty took her position five yards out of the net while Scheible guarded the cords as goalie, Ruth Winder had to move out. Bound's shot bounded past the substitute goalie for this play and went into the twine anyway to chalk up the Owls' only point of the game.

It was near the close of the second half that the Falcons made their only serious threat in the game as they penetrated deep into the Blue and Gray clad lassies' defensive zone. But Fallsington made the most of their single opportunity to score for Christine Kay, center halfback for the Orange, picked the ball out of a scrimmage in the striking zone, and fired it into the net to tie the count at 1-1.

Miss Smith was rather keenly disappointed in the showing her girls made in the game for they should have scored oftener than the final total shows as the Owls were in the Falcons' defensive zone during most of the game and missed several scoring opportunities. She blamed the loss of the rough field, and overconfidence among the girls after their surprise victory over Newtown last week. The latter, she felt, was due mainly for their inability to defeat the Falcon girls yesterday afternoon.

ies, probably held some "schnaps;" one-, three-, and five-gallon ones held all variety of beverages from cider and vinegar to wines and strong drink; while others were used for water pitchers or to convey milk or thick cream to the family table.

The smallest in the collection is about the size of a tea cup, and the largest is five-gallon size. And Mr. McLees states that although many are similar, no two are exactly alike.

Many in the collection have been made by hand, and on some fingerprints are easily discernable from the jug or crock being given a last firm press when in the process of drying.

Old-fashioned indeed are the Revolutionary ink bottles, and a number of the pieces in the collection are hand-painted. One buckwheat batter pitcher in the collection, a rich golden brown in color, is of two-gallon size. One jug which Mr. McLees prizes highly was owned by his mother over a half century ago. Another, a vase of unusual shape, has numerous holes in the top for the flowers.

The oldest is a gin jug which has been handed down from the family of Jacob Hagstoz, first sugar refiners in Philadelphia, and which family migrated from Germany. This piece is approximated at 200 years. It was Painted by one of the fair members of the family when she was 16 years of age.

Another jug of great antiquity was in the possession of a Cedar street family for 150 years. This is a little brown jug.

As he travels about the countryside Mr. McLees is often fortunate enough to induce families to sell him jugs which repose in attics or cellars under coatings of dust, and in some instances white-wash.

CAPE FOULWEATHER, Ore. — (INS)—An odd-shaped paddle, believed to be one of those used by Fiji islanders, was picked up along the beach near here recently. The curio was composed of two sections, spliced together with rawhide, and must have drifted thousands of miles across the ocean in order to reach the Oregon coast.
